SUU/SUCPD Target Audience: This one-day conference is designed to inform academic urologists involved in the development and implementation of urology residency programs. The conference should be of special interest to those physicians involved in the education, supervision and evaluation of urology residents.

SUU Needs: The technologies of robotic and non-prostatic ultrasound are currently not a requirement of the urology residency review committee for urologic training. However, urologists in practice are performing significant numbers of these cases. The current data on case volume and the impact on practice patterns, credentialing and the expense and diminished quality of post-residency training will be discussed.

SUU Objectives: At the conclusion of this meeting, attendees should be able to:

1. Identify the current requirements for urologic residency training.
2. Review the AUA recommendations for urologic residency training.
3. Describe the implications of training during urologic residency on future practice.

SUCPD Needs: There is a need for better understanding of the role of the government and the upcoming changes in health care which will impact resident training and academic practice. In addition, there is a need for better understanding of the role of web-based learning and new methods of resident education in this new age of electronic learning.

SUCPD Objectives: At the conclusion of this meeting, attendees should be able to:

1. Describe some of the newer web-based modalities available for training residents.
2. Review the AUA Core Curriculum and how it may be implemented into resident training.
3. Identify the implications of training during residency for future practice in the face of the new regulatory landscape.
4. Identify the implications of training for future practice in the face of changing demographics and physician man-power issues.

Accreditation: The American Urological Association Education & Research, Inc. (AUAER) is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.
